THE BEGINNINGS: 1960 - 1965

During the 36th Convention of the American Speech and Hearing Association (ASHA) in 1960 at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles, Ronald Tikofsky, Hildred Schuell, Martha Taylor and Joseph Wepman gathered informally in Martha Taylor's hotel room for drinks. A discussion ensued concerning the issue that not enough attention was being paid to the problems associated with aphasia at the annual ASHA meetings. It was the group's consensus that a multidisciplinary group needed to be organized, either with-in or independent of ASHA, to serve as a forum for the exchange of scientific information about aphasia. Following that meeting Ronald Tikofsky from the Speech Clinic of the University of Michigan became the prime mover and spokesman in the drive to create a group and continued in that role during the early years of the Academy's life.

A few days after the meeting in Los Angeles Tikofsky wrote to Jo Simonson at the Mayo Clinic proposing that the organization "include people from the field of psychology and medicine who are concerned with research in aphasia. These people, such as Dr. Brown at Mayo, as you well know, infrequently come to ASHA meetings and this limits our exchange of information." Tikofsky wrote letters to several individuals who might be interested in joining such a group. A few weeks later Simonson wrote supporting the idea and indicated that she had been encouraging ASHA to pay more attention to adult speech disorders. She expressed the opinion that the proposed aphasia group not separate itself from ASHA and that if ASHA enriched its program, members of other disciplines might be interested in attending. Simonson had been assigned the responsibility for all aphasia sections at the 1961 ASHA convention and she enclosed a table of ASHA sections on aphasia from 1958, 1959, and 1960 meetings. Essentially there had been no increase in the number of attendees at aphasia section meetings in this three year period. (See Appendix)

In a letter to Maurice Sklar at the VA in Los Angeles, Tikofsky reiterated Wepman's concern that multidisciplinary groups tend to "get into hassles over terminology".

Early in 1961, in another letter to Simonson, in anticipation of her role in the upcoming 1961 ASHA meetings in Chicago, Tikofsky suggested a need for two distinct types of meetings: one for clinical and one for experimental material. He pointed out that most of the papers on aphasia presented at ASHA related to new clinical technology designed by speech pathologists and that it was apparent that much work in aphasia was going on in other disciplines. As an example he cited papers by Dr. Joe Brown, a neurologist, "Clinical Aspects of Aphasia", Annals of Otology, 69: 1214-1222, 1960. His letter also said:

I have recently heard from Martha Taylor who suggests that our organization be independent of ASHA so that the red tape in ASHA administration be avoided. Harlan Bloomer feels we should be a special interest group within ASHA, but doesn't know how to handle non-ASHA members. Martha also feels that we should be as interdisciplinary as possible. I think she has made some meaningful suggestions in thinking that we ought to have some private meetings at the Chicago convention with a select group of invited people to discuss these issues. She felt that we might be able to draw up an agenda for one or two private meetings at the Chicago convention and on the basis of reactions of those who attend decide in which direction to move. Martha, as well as Lucille Kaplan, Maurice Sklar and Mildred McKeown seem very enthusiastic about the need. Joe Wepman is also interested but in a rather fringe sort of way. He felt that if we got started with a group he would want to be in it and my feeling is from my last communication from him that his interest is being steadily aroused.

In the first two years of the group's evolution, the issue of whether to remain a part of a larger organization often came up for discussion. Twenty-five years later Joe Brown wrote in a letter to Sarno:

I also recall that Ron Tikofsky spoke to me while the Academy was being planned. I told him that I thought it would need to tie itself to a larger organization (neurologic, speech, or psychological) to be successful. So much for my ability to predict.

Since there are no minutes or correspondence related to any "private meetings" held in Chicago at the ASHA meetings in 1961 it is assumed that they were never held. However, correspondence continued between Tikofsky and interested persons. He had already suggested a planning meeting for the fall of 1962 and hoped that Kurt Goldstein would attend.

Early in 1962 Tikofsky wrote to Fred Darley at the Mayo Clinic regarding the fact that he had not yet heard from ASHA concerning their stand vis-a-vis a relationship to the "Aphasia Interest Group".

Donalda McGeachy, a speech pathologist from Toronto Western Hospital, who later became Academy Secretary during its first five years of existence, expressed her pleasure in a letter to Tikofsky that ASHA was considering the development of interest groups. It was a movement that never materialized, however, for both Elise Hahn and Ken Johnson of ASHA wrote expressing disapproval of the idea.

In a letter to Tikofsky in April 1962 in connection with the planning meeting scheduled to take place in November on the day before the ASHA convention in New York City, Wepman wrote:

What if you (or I) took a suite and threw a party the afternoon before the convention, by invitation only, and invited Kurt Goldstein to chat with us; or had a Sunday Brunch meeting of invited friends and Kurt as a speaker....As to the APA -- as a member of the Council of the Division most interested, Division 22 -- I think we'd all find a happy home and a great deal of interest, but I'd explore ASHA channels first, since Division 22 is something we can always turn to....All in all, it may take another year before we can get a full day's program -- on the books and paid for. A dutch treat luncheon or a party with invited speakers and guests we could do this year with or without ASHA sanction.

Tikofsky replied:

We should continue to persevere in our efforts to get a group established. I agree that we ought to hold Division 22 in the offing until we are firmly shut out by the more "progressive" members of the executive council of ASHA.

Later Tikofsky, with the support of Wepman, decided to press for establishment of the Aphasia Interest Group as an independent society. Wepman felt that "only through such a group can we exert enough influence on the ASHA so that they will turn around and take us back under our terms." At this point a large number of individuals within ASHA had expressed interest in conversations and correspondence in establishing a group. In view of the uncertainty of ASHA's support Tikofsky organized a planning group which included members of other disciplines as well. The initial composition of the group, as stated in a letter of July 5, 1962, consisted of Donald McGeachy, Shulamith Kastein, Harold Goodglass and Norman Geschwind.

In a letter dated July 3, 1962 to Goodglass, Tikofsky suggested the possibility of publishing a newsletter to circulate among those who had expressed interest in an aphasia study group. He also suggested a dinner meeting immediately before the ASHA meetings in New York in November. Tikofsky pointed out that Sid Weinstein, a psychologist, was scheduled to present a paper on aphasia at the ASHA meeting. In a follow-up letter to Tikofsky a few months later, Goodglass indicated that he and Geschwind would attend the planning committee meeting in New York and suggested that it be open to anyone interested. A few months later, Tikofsky wrote to Goodglass specifying the time and place of the meeting as Sunday, November 18, 1962 at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York City.

A letter from Russell Meyers expressed interest in participating in an aphasia study group:

I've always been deeply impressed with the potential of the aphasic patient for illuminating our understanding of the relationship between language and 'thought' and the derangement of each.

In this letter Meyers expressed himself on the subject of closed or open meetings.

I strongly favor the concept that has apparently been endorsed for closed meetings: Whenever meetings are open to the less sophisticated among our colleagues, serious efforts at making progress appear to be sabotaged. There is ample opportunity for academics in our scientific discipline to act as educators for the interested but less advanced student of aphasia!

Meyers also suggested that Art Benton be invited to participate, and at the planning committee meeting the following month Benton was named to sit on a Committee on Purpose and Bylaws.

All of the above is a rather loose-jointed history of some of what preceded that all important meeting in New York in November 1962 at which it can be truly said that the Academy of Aphasia was born. Thanks to the hard work and persistence of Tikofsky, the planning committee was constituted and met at the Statler Hilton Hotel on the day before the annual convention of ASHA.

ASHA, however, was not to be the parent of the group. With Tikofsky as chairman, the group decided on an independent organization, an interdisciplinary study group similar to the Academy of Cerebral Palsy, and promptly set about organizing such a group. An executive committee was named, appropriately under the acting chairmanship of Tikofsky, and committees were formed. They included: Statement of Purpose and Bylaws, Membership and Standards, Program, and Committee on Time and Place. (See Appendix, Minutes Planning Committee Aphasia Study Group, November 18, 1962)

It is interesting to look at the list of names of those who launched the ship at that momentous meeting: Ronald Tikofsky, Maurice Sklar, Fred Greenberg, Jon Eisenson, Harold Goodglass, Michael D'Asaro, Leonard Pearson, Martin Palmer and Donald McGeachy. All of the usual procedures were carried out, bylaws written, etc. Charter members would include all invited prior to June 30, 1964, membership would be limited to two-hundred, the Bylaws would take effect upon a 2/3 vote at the First Annual Scientific Meeting on November 1 and 2, 1963 at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago. In a letter to McGeachy, Tikofsky wrote, "it's not the best hotel in the world but it is a hotel". The first election was planned for the Third Annual Meeting in 1965.

Sometime soon after the meeting Goodglass wrote to Tikofsky: I must say the name Academy of Aphasia strikes me as odd. I hope it isn't too late to put in my vote for a different name. First, I would prefer a less pretentious term than "Academy", such as "Association", or even our original term "Group". Then I think we should have some term to indicate Study or Research. e.g., "Aphasia Study Association" or "Group for Aphasia Studies". Even "Academy of Aphasia Studies" wouldn't sound too bad.

In a communication to Tikofsky, Goodglass referred to "The Aphasia Group" and "The Aphasia Study Group". He also wrote to Tikofsky favoring a "class of associates" or non-voting members.

Tikofsky wrote to Martin Palmer, "Some feel that this (Academy) is too ostentatious a title to use at this time, and others feel that why not go ahead and use it. I think the best thing is to start out and make changes as time and need dictate."

In 1963 Tikofsky sent a "Summer Newsletter" announcing the time and place of the first meeting to those who had expressed interest in establishing the group. In those days Tikofsky used mimeographed Academy of Aphasia letterhead, appropriate to the modest beginnings of the group.

The Academy of Aphasia held its first meeting at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago, November 1 - 2, 1963. Eighty members, the majority of whom were speech pathologists, attended the meeting. The scientific program, under the chairmanship of Norman Geschwind, was printed on a mimeographed sheet and included a paper by Arthur Benton on "Contributions to Aphasia Before Broca", "Broca's Contribution to Aphasia" by Robert Joynt, and Norman Geschwind's "The Paradoxical Status of Kurt Goldstein's Contributions to Aphasia". There were four symposia: "Nonrecognition of Illness," in which F. A. Quadfasel and Ed Weinstein participated; "Childhood Aphasia," shared by Jon Eisenson, Shulamith Kastein and Eric Lenneberg; "Problems and Approaches in Aphasia Therapy," presented by Ronald Tikofsky, Donald McGeachy, and Dan Boone; and "Linguistic Changes in Aphasic Speech," presented by Harold Goodglass, Norman McQuown and Joseph Wepman.

At the first business meeting in 1963 Tikofsky reported that there were 121 individuals who had become members. The U.S.A., Canada and England were represented among them. Seventy-five of the members were speech pathologists, 21 physicians (two of the physicians were also speech pathologists) and 20 psychologists. The name of the organization was still a controversial topic. Wepman suggested the organization's name be changed to "The Academy for the Study of Aphasia." Ed Weinstein suggested "The Academy of Neurolinguistics" but changed his mind in favor of "aphasia" because of the historical significance of the subject. There was discussion about the restrictive nature of the use of the word "aphasia" as well as the issue of limitations in the membership size. Goodglass reported as Treasurer that there was a balance on hand of $325.89. Dues were then five dollars and never exceeded fifteen dollars. In the first 25 years. He also requested "outside secretarial help to carry out correspondence and other clerical duties". He recommended someone who was available at $2.50 per hour, but submitted "I don't know whether we can afford this kind of outlay of money."

There was much debate over the nature and size of the membership as specified in the Bylaws. Further concern was expressed for maintaining a just distribution of representatives across disciplines, specifically the fear that speech pathologists might dominate the group. There was also discussion of the possibility of distributing copies of papers in advance of meetings.

Tikofsky suggested that the 1964 meeting be held in Niagara Falls prior to the meeting of the Psychonomic Society. This raised the question of which side of the Falls was more appropriate for the meeting which was resolved in favor of the American side, but when it was learned that there was a more reasonably priced hotel on the Canadian side ($5./single, $7.50/double), the decision was reversed. Edith Kaplan was appointed as Local Arrangements Chairman. It was decided that the extant executive board, consisting of Ronald Tikofsky, Norman Geschwind, Harold Goodglass, Anita Halper, Donald McGeachy, Leonard Pearson, Lamar Roberts and Maurice Sklar should remain in office without a formal election in order to give the organization continuity.

In 1964 the Publication Committee agreed to continue sending out a mimeographed Newsletter for the next two years. Its frequency would be from one to four issues annually. It was also suggested that the late summer issue contain 50 word abstracts of the papers scheduled for presentation by the invited speakers at the Annual Meeting. The Committee had initially considered a quarterly listing of selected recent references in the area of aphasia, an annual membership list, and a list of language training centers in the U.S.A. and Canada staffed by ASHA certified therapists. Herb Landsdell asked for questions from the floor regarding publishing proceedings of the Annual meeting. In the discussion that followed several arguments against publication carried the day. It was felt that many people would not present a paper if it were later to be published, that free remarks and free discussion would be inhibited if they were to be transcribed and that the membership wants to hear work in progress before it is ready for publication. Five years later the minutes revealed that the Mouton Publishing Co. had approached the Academy to publish proceedings and the Board declined their offer.

It was suggested that an archivist be named to maintain and promote a cumulative record of the Academy; this was strongly supported by the membership but not realized until 1985 when Martha Taylor Sarno was appointed.

Reviewing the response to a questionnaire circulated in the Spring of 1964 regarding changes in the membership provision of the Bylaws, the Board concluded that "there is no danger of our having a sudden influx of members as the Academy is not a professional society.

Geschwind reminded the group that honorary members must be over 65 years of age and that the purpose of honorary status was to single out those who had made great contributions but were no longer active. Although never realized, it was moved and seconded that funds would be allotted to the Committee on Publications to publish the titles of Ph.D. theses which related to aphasia.

At the third annual meeting held on October 4-5, 1965 at the Sheraton-Brock Hotel in Niagara Falls, Canada, 49 members and 68 non-members attended. Luigi Vignolo from Milan and Goro Kamiyama from Tokyo became the first overseas members in 1965.

Geschwind suggested that the Bylaws be changed to allow the Governing Board to submit a single slate of nominees so that no one would lose an election. In this way, he felt, the many different disciplines would have balanced representation on the Board.

At the board meeting Geschwind's proposal was adopted by instructing the Nominating Committee to draw up a single slate. Benton was announced as the next Program Chairman and Tikofsky was elected unanimously by the Board of Governors to serve as Chairman for the next two years. Although the same number of members attended this meeting as the preceding it was noted that more than twice as many non-members attended. The Chairman observed that we are "not growing at a rapid rate or being overwhelmed by applications, which is a good thing." He also announced that Martin Palmer, Director of the Institute of Logopedics who was "strongly instrumental in helping to form the Academy in its infancy", had recently passed away.

In view of Kurt Goldstein's death, Tikofsky suggested that a Kurt Goldstein Memorial Lecture be included in the 1966 meeting. Fred Quadfasel was asked to do this and opted for making some introductory remarks on Goldstein's life and work. This was followed by a symposium of papers which included some presentations on the contributions of Wernicke, Pitres and Head.

At the business meeting Joe Brown, Goodglass and Howes discussed the problems and merits of using the word "honorary" to define a class of membership. Howes felt that the term should be restricted to those who had made an outstanding contribution but who were not necessarily retired. There was much discussion about the distinction among senior, life and honorary membership. In 1967, the Bylaws were changed to provide for these three classes of membership.

In the twenty-five years Russell Brain (1964), Kurt Goldstein (1964), J. M. Neilsen (1964), Wilder Penfield (1964), Henri Hecaen (1967), Eberhard Bay (1968), Francois Lhermitte (1968), MacDonald Critchley (1969), Roman Jakobson (1969), Oliver Zangwill (1974), Joe Brown (1976), and Brenda Milner (1984) were given honorary status.

The guidelines for membership and the necessity for specifying eligibility requirements were discussed and it was pointed out that the Academy did not see itself as a certifying body, a placement service or a professional organization to replace others. "The intention was and is to evolve a scholarly society of people from various disciplines to discuss, not to discriminate against people concerned with treatment." Geschwind stated that the purpose of the Academy is to involve people who are acting to advance the field and that there are three generally acceptable ways to do this: (1) research, (2) teaching, and (3) administration. He went on to say that "if the doors were open to everyone treating aphasic patients, this would not fulfill the original purpose of the organization." On the other hand, Geschwind argued, there might be people who do not meet the stated requirements, but who make an outstanding contribution to the field through their work in aphasia treatment, for example. In his opinion these people should be considered for membership. Sid Weinstein considered this discussion out of order "since the purpose of the Academy had been clearly defined previously." Tikofsky received a standing ovation for his role as founding Chairman until 1967.

At the 1966 board meeting Benton, as the coming year's Program Chairman, was informed that if he wished to bring a European scholar the Academy would provide funds to make this possible. Benton would follow the precedent established by previous program chairmen in that there would be no duplication of papers, and no speaker would be asked to speak for two years in succession. In 1976 the membership voted to suspend this rule, but directed the program committee to give preference to papers submitted by authors not on the previous year's program.

MEETING PLACES

In the first twenty-five years, with the exception of the 1963 meeting in November in Chicago and the 1969 September meeting in Boston, the Academy meetings were always held in October. Chicago was the meeting site on three occasions and Niagara Falls for two consecutive years. All of the other locations were visited once. In 1975 the membership voted in favor of city rather than country sites for meeting.

For a modestly funded organization there has been an interesting variety of meeting sites. (See Appendix) In some instances, the meetings were held in one building and the attendees were housed in another. At the University of Michigan, for example, in 1967, meetings were held at the Undergraduate Library and the attendees were accommodated at the nearby Howard Johnson Motel. The following year, meetings were held at the Mayo Clinic and the attendees were housed at the Kahler Hotel. In a memorable monologue at dinner one evening, Sid Weinstein held forth on the perils of being housed at the Mayo's Kahler Hotel, the danger of being mistaken for a pre-operative patient. The minutes of the 1967 Board Meeting state that "it was generally agreed that location makes little difference. The quality of the program makes the big difference."

Understandably, the most picturesque meeting settings were those at Niagara Falls, which were held in a turn of the century clapboard building, a short walk from a view of the Falls. The rooms were fitted with steam radiators, some with fireplaces and the structure had a large and noticeable fire escape running up one side of the building. In 1974, Airlie House near Washington, D.C., was a charming manor in a pastoral setting which lent the meetings an unforgettable ambience. The Edwardian English atmosphere natural to the French environment of the Montreal meeting place in 1975 gave these meetings a special ambience.

The subjects of meeting places and racial discrimination combined to produce one of the Academy's rare controversies in the late sixties. Thanks to the judicious efforts of Joe Brown, the matter was concluded in a dignified and effective manner. The following excerpts are from a letter from Joe Brown to the Academy membership:

At the October 7, 1968 meeting of the Academy of Aphasia in Rochester, Minnesota the Governing Board recommended Boston as the meeting site for 1969 and this was approved. In view of the expressed desire to move to various geographic areas, New Orleans was suggested for 1970. In the ensuing discussion, diverse opinions were expressed: that we should not meet in a city where racist attitudes might be prominent; that we should meet where we wish as an integrated group and serve as an educational device in civil rights; that our organization has a scientific rather than civil rights purpose.

At the business meeting last October, action on New Orleans as a meeting site was deferred for further information. The desired information involved how a racially mixed and integrated group such as ours would be received in New Orleans. Specifically, would small mixed groups be subject to unpleasantness at the meeting hotel, while dining out together, while walking along the street together. I sought this information from a variety of sources I consider to be knowledgeable about the problem and objective. These sources included a psychiatrist, a neurologist and a speech pathologist, two officials in the American Civil Liberties Union and one NAACP official. I received a report from the New Orleans Tourist and Convention Commission, a source not necessarily objective. I requested a report from a person in the black activist movement but received no reply.....

One ACLU letter commented, "It would be helpful to those of us trying to change this city, for groups like yours to meet here and help us document the details and the mechanics of discrimination encountered here". The NAACP letter stated, "I am delighted that your scientific organization is conscious of and sensitive to the problems of racism confronting us today.....I agree that you should be able to meet where you wish; however, you need to insist that your entire group be received and treated according to the federal laws which allow no exceptions in public accommodations".

To digress briefly, at the 1968 meeting two-thirds of those attending were non-members. Most of the non-members were from Minnesota and surrounding states. This has been true of other meetings of the Academy. The Governing Board of the Academy has viewed moving around to different geographic areas as an opportunity to educate and interest students and scientists of the geographic area.

The Governing Board of the Academy of Aphasia has considered all of these factors and has come to the following conclusions and recommendations:

1. Withholding our meeting from an area or city would provide little or no effective protest or comment.
2. Holding our meeting in a city that does follow the federal laws might provide a positive comment and could possibly help a group such as the ACLU in combating discrimination.

3. For these reasons and to promote education concerning aphasia in all general geographic areas, we should meet in selected southern cities at appropriate times.
4. We should meet in New Orleans in 1970 as part of the program of moving to various geographic areas.
5. The whole membership, not just those present at an annual business meeting, should vote on this problem.

To implement the above recommendations, I am enclosing a ballot.

The ballot received "overwhelming support" for New Orleans as the next meeting place and the Board approved the site for 1970.

ACADEMY BUSINESS

Because of the small size of the group and the limited scope of its activities, business meetings were relatively uneventful. The important issues follow.

At the 1962 planning committee meeting of The Aphasia Study Group held at the Statler Hilton Hotel in New York a committee on Statement of Purpose and Bylaws was formed. The committee, chaired by Pearson and consisting of Geschwind, James Jenkins, Joe Brown, Benton and Palmer prepared a preliminary first draft of the Bylaws which was circulated among the charter members in time for the first Academy meeting in November 1963.

During the first Academy business meeting suggested changes were read aloud by Chairman Tikofsky and members made changes in their own copies. The revised first draft was circulated in the Spring of 1964 accompanied by a questionnaire concerning issues raised at the first meeting. Sixty-six members responded giving "overwhelming support" for the name Academy of Aphasia, limiting the membership to 200, requiring proposed new members to be recommended by two sponsors, and limiting the number of honorary members. There was considerable comment "regarding the desirability of keeping the organization multi-disciplinary" which was viewed as "paramount, and of basic importance to the whole purpose". Referring to Article II, Section 2 one member wrote "I dislike the term 'brain damage' intensely." The term was dropped in the 1974 revision. Another member indicated "It is possible that the membership of 200 may become too restricting, but this will have to be determined later."

Substantial changes in the method for electing officers were made in the 1966 Bylaws revision. (See Appendix). This revision also provided that the Board take office on January 1st and prohibited Governing Board members from serving two consecutive terms.

In 1966 the Bylaws were changed to provide for three classes of membership (member, honorary, senior), make eligibility for membership more flexible, change the method of nomination for the Governing Board, and add a rule which provides a procedure for handling failure to pay dues. In fact in 1969, 19 members were dropped for failure to pay dues or to attend four consecutive meetings. In the Academy's 25 years the record shows 122 charter members, 26 senior members, 12 honorary members and 12 deceased.

At the 1968 meeting Joynt proposed an amendment to Article VI, Section 2 which would require that the Nominating Committee convene prior to the annual meeting in order to prepare a slate of candidates. It also provided that the elections would be made by a majority of the voting membership present and elected Board members would take office at the next meeting. It was at this meeting that Gerald Canter was the first nominee to be elected from the floor.

Minor revisions were made in 1971 pertaining to the time of the Board of Governors taking office and the procedures for submitting proposals for amendment. The revised Bylaws were distributed in booklet form to the membership in 1971.

A proposal at the 1975 business meeting was made by Chairman Howes which suggested that a standing nominating committee be appointed. It was voted that the proposed change be approved in principle. The question of whether any member of the nominating committee could be appointed by the chairman became an issue for discussion. It was voted that one member be elected and that the proposal be presented to the membership for approval.

As time went on, the Bylaws required further classification. At the 1975 business meeting, Chairman Judith Trost named Davis Howes to chair a Committee with James Aten and Peter Rosenberger to revise the Bylaws. The Committee did not intend to "offer a line by line notation of changes", but would make substantial revisions. At the 1977 business meeting, Chairman Trost announced that the revision was nearly in final form. The final draft of the revised Bylaws was sent to the membership for a vote in October of 1979 and approved in that year.

In 1980, Harry Whitaker proposed that the membership ceiling of 200 "be lifted" arguing "that it leads to elitism....." He suggested a mail ballot proposing that (1) the ceiling be increased to 250, or (2) the ceiling be eliminated altogether. "A mildly heated discussion ensued". Geschwind feared that removing the limit might upset the current interdisciplinary balance. Howes proposed that the Board reconsider its decision to vote on an increase of the membership limit. Sheila Blumstein summarized the rationale as a choice between a status quo that eventually precludes new, especially young members from joining and a no ceiling situation which could result in unwieldy meetings "restricted in location and bereft of the intimacy and informality that have characterized the annual meetings so far". Chairman Klaus Poeck proposed that a mail ballot be sent out offering the membership the option of keeping the 200 limit or changing it to 250. Geschwind offered another formula where the 200 limit would continue to apply to North American members whereas unrestricted membership would apply to the others.

At the 1981 meeting the Secretary reported that 37 members voted on the mail ballot to raise the ceiling to 250 and 61 voted in favor of Geschwind's proposal (option) to leave the 200 ceiling for North American members. It was proposed that a new ballot be mailed before the 1982 meeting to resolve the issue since the vote failed to reach the required 2/3 majority. The new ballot reached the required 2/3 majority and voted in favor of Geschwind's proposal.

THE ANNUAL PROGRAM

At the first business meeting in 1963, the Chairman reported that the Board of Governors had agreed that one historical paper be presented at each meeting and that a foreign speaker be on the program each year. Both decisions were infrequently implemented in future programs. The Chairman suggested that although it was not the practice of the Academy to pay anyone's expenses, some financial help in the form of an honorarium might be given a foreign speaker as an expression of appreciation.

Benton was asked to be Chairman of the Program Committee for 1964-1965. The Board concurred with the criteria that distinguished contributors who have passed retirement age should be invited to Honorary Membership and voted to offer honorary status to Kurt Goldstein, J. M. Neilsen, Russell Brain and Wilder Penfield.

Issues affecting future programming were raised and the Board agreed that for the time being the practice of having invited papers, with at least one session on historical papers would be continued. The latter suggestion was apparently overlooked since there were historical presentations at only the 1963, 1966, 1967, 1970 and 1976 meetings.

At the annual meeting in 1964 the Chairman of the Program Committee, Geschwind, stated that the aim of his committee had been "that the program not be overcrowded in order to provide adequate time for free discussion, business meetings and coffee breaks, and this had been achieved." He suggested that we keep this concept in the future. Further he said he felt the papers presented should be long and intensive with plenty of time for discussion rather than brief. As to the areas covered by the papers, if we wanted to present this type of program, the speakers should be invited. They should be asked to cover specified areas, and the program structured to cover fields which had not previously been covered. It had been agreed that no speaker would be invited to give papers two consecutive years. He also noted that some people had suggested that there "be structured small groupings for discussion" but he felt that it was preferable to provide the time for spontaneous free groupings for discussion.

A non-scientific highlight of one of the Niagara Falls meetings was Geschwind's marathon recitation of humorous dialect stories. No one who was present in his room that evening will ever forget it.

In 1966, Benton formally asked the Board to send subject and speaker suggestions to him in preparation for the 1967 meeting. At the Board meeting that year "it was agreed that the present policy regarding papers remain; that is, the papers be lengthy, there be ample time for discussion and that there not be the same speaker in two consecutive years".

For the first ten years it was traditional for the scientific program to be designed by the program chairman and his committee. The first formal "call for papers" took place in connection with the 1971 meeting when Martha Taylor Sarno was Scientific Program Chairman. Under the earlier system, the program chairman encouraged investigators to prepare papers for presentation based on work in progress or completed. In some cases a title or topic was assigned to a colleague based on the individual's expertise or current work. Sometimes the program was developed around topics with experts in the topic areas invited to submit a paper. The practice of announcing a formal call for papers signalled the beginning of a greater volume of presentations and a concurrent decrease in the amount of time allotted for discussion. Poster sessions have been held continuously since 1981.

The first printed program, on heavy colored paper with colored ink, appeared in 1968. Heretofore, programs were either mimeographed or offset printed on 8½ x 11" white bond paper. For the first time in 1975 the program gave the speakers' city and/or country. Additional printing costs have always mitigated against including each speaker's affiliation.

At the 1971 Board meeting it was decided that video-taping and audio tape recordings would be prohibited at future meetings and that no official newspaper interviews should be permitted.

As might be expected the annual scientific programs reflected trends in contemporary theories of aphasia, clinical practices, the composition of the Academy membership, and topics in aphasia receiving attention in scientific journals.

At the initial meeting held at the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago symposia were offered on the history of aphasia centering on the contributions of Paul Broca, childhood aphasia, linguistic changes in aphasic speech, and nonrecognition of illness. The 1964 meeting in Niagara Falls, Ontario was the first to address childhood dyslexia, polyglot aphasia, and disturbances in gesture and pantomime. The first session on psycholinguistics took place in Niagara Falls in 1965. A Kurt Goldstein memorial session reviewing his work and that of Carl Wernicke Albert Pitres and Henry Head was held at the University of Chicago in 1966. At subsequent meetings the views of Marie, Jackson, Head and Wernicke were considered. The earliest presentations on aphasia therapy were made at the first Academy meeting in 1963. Thereafter, the topics of recovery and rehabilitation were reflected in more than half of the programs.

In 1965 the scientific meeting designed by Geschwind included the first session of psycholinguistics which was chaired by Howes with Murray Miron and Lyle Jones participating as well as a presentation on learning in aphasia by Florence Carson.

The first paper correlating findings of radioactive scanning with aphasic symptomatology was given in Ann Arbor in 1967 and was a topic which was presented at virtually every meeting thereafter.

Papers on the anatomic basis of hemisphere laterality, and on disturbances of attention and laterality in right hemisphere lesions were given at the Mayo Clinic in 1968. Beginning in 1969, there was a notable emergence of papers on linguistic topics especially naming, although the first linguistic presentation was in 1966 which corresponds with the admission of linguists to membership. The first application of speech science methodology to the study of aphasia appeared on the 1965 program when a paper about the electromyographic measurement of articulation in a sample of patients with cortical dysarthria was described by Donald Shankweiler.

At the 1970 meeting in New Orleans papers were first given dealing with asymmetries in motor function and dichotic listening, as well as asymmetries of cerebral blood flow. These topics often appeared in subsequent programs.

Studies of disorders of syntax and agrammatism were first presented in Denver in 1971 and Rochester in 1972. Papers on speech processing in bilingual patients were given in 1973 in Albuquerque and in 1975 in Victoria, B.C.

Effects on language of thalamic stimulation and lesions were subjects of the 1974 and 1976 meetings in Warrenton, Virginia and Miami Beach. The 1975 meeting included a lecture on chimpanzee language and reports on the effects of hemispherectomy and hemidecortication.

Correlations of CT scan findings and aphasia types were presented in 1976 and the following year in Montreal. The 1977 meeting included papers on the implications of anatomic brain asymmetries, and a discussion of the relation between aging and aphasia type. Recovery of language function in head injury was first discussed by Harvey Levin in Chicago in 1978. Six years later a paper specifically addressing language impairment in a pediatric head injured sample was given. The first studies of linguistic competence in the normal and brain damaged elderly were presented in San Diego in 1979 in a symposium organized by Martin Albert. This was the beginning of a series of presentations on language in the elderly at practically every subsequent meeting. The 1979 meeting included a study of the use of intra-carotid amytal.

A symposium held in 1981 in London, Ontario and organized by Adam Wechsler considered the gross and microscopic anatomic, functional, gender, and environmental influences on the cerebral organization of hemisphere laterality. Another session was devoted to the classification and localization of the subcortical aphasias. Sessions on right hemisphere contributions to language and the acquired dyslexias were held at the Lake Mohonk 1982 meeting.

In Minneapolis in 1983 reports were featured on the effects of brain lesions on sign language, and the application of PET scanning to the study of normal and disturbed brain function. A symposium on neuroimaging techniques was held in 1984 in Santa Monica. Another session was devoted to the study of language defects associated with Alzheimer's, Pick's, Huntington's and Parkinson's diseases. The 1985 meeting in Pittsburgh presented symposia on agrammatism, naming and phonological disturbances in aphasia.

Over the years a significant number of distinguished aphasiologists and noted persons in related areas have been invited to speak as luncheon or dinner speakers. The first foreign speaker was Luigi Vignolo (Milan) in 1964 who presented a paper as part of a symposium entitled "The Evaluation of Speech Therapy". Henri Hecaen (Paris) presented "Classification of Alexia" in 1967 and MacDonald Critchley (London) presented "Communication and Its Disorders in Deaf Mutes" in 1969. At the same meeting "Some Linguistic Remarks on Aphasia" was presented by Roman Jakobson. Ennio DeRenzi (Milan) was the invited speaker for the Hildred Schuell Memorial Lecture in 1971 and Eric Lennenberg presented "Linear Ordering of Aphasic Syndromes and Its Relation to Language Acquisition".

The following year Joseph Bogen was the luncheon speaker on "Wernicke's Area - Where Is It? Thoughts About (and Against) Cortical Localization".

Certain landmark presentations bear mentioning. The pioneer work of the Boston VA group in establishing the fluency/nonfluency classification dichotomy was first presented to the Academy membership by D. Frank Benson in 1967 ("Fluency in Aphasia: Correlation with Radioactive Scan Localization"). The first and only paper which specifically addressed compensatory behavior in aphasia was presented by the late M. Maruszewski (Cracow) in 1968.

In 1968, acknowledging a general interest in the topic of nomenclature in aphasia, Goodglass organized a symposium on this topic. He grouped terminology around six topics: the term aphasia, motor speech disorders (cortical motor aphasia, verbal apraxia), grammatical defects (agrammatism, telegraphic speech), paraphasia (jargon, non-aphasic misnaming), auditory receptive disorders (auditory agnosia, Wernicke's aphasia, word deafness), and the naming disorders (word finding difficulty, semantic aphasia). Geschwind acted as a moderator and Tikofsky, Darley, Eisenson, Wepman, Otfried Spreen, Joynt and Ed Weinstein were discussants.

During the three days prior to the 1969 annual meetings, the Aphasia Research Center of the Boston VA conducted a workshop in aphasia. The faculty consisted of Goodglass, Geschwind and Benson, as well as Critchley from the National Hospital for Neurological Diseases.

Ever since a paper which addressed personality and/or emotional factors in aphasia was given by Ed Weinstein in 1970 ("Personality Factors in Jargon Aphasia") no other speaker has presented on this topic. The first papers specifically addressing auditory comprehension deficits did not appear until 1969 when Don Reiff and Joynt spoke on "Studies on the Receptive Language of a Callosally Sectioned Patient". The first paper which addressed the sub-cortical correlates of language behavior was presented by Eric Levita in 1970. A group of papers at the 1972 meetings given by Benson, Albert, Hecaen, Francois Boller, Eugene Greene, Carol Rinnert, J. Douglass Noll and Harry Whitaker addressed auditory comprehension in aphasia. In 1985 a session commemorating the contributions of Norman Geschwind chaired by Michael Alexander included a presentation by Howard Gardner - "Norman Geschwind: A Case Study in Scientific Creativity".

There have been many lighter moments at the meetings as well. During dinner one evening at the Rochester, New York meeting in 1972, Linda Swisher, Cristly Ludlow, and Terry Wertz spent an hour explaining the concept of the "knock-knock" joke to Marcel Kinsbourne. Marcel claimed he had the concept, and he was ready to participate. Linda began, "okay Marcel, knock-knock." Marcel responded "knock-knock to you too."

There is a story around that Antonio Damasio and others were concerned about holding the 1987 meeting in Phoenix, Arizona because of snakes. Leonard LaPointe comforted them by relating that 30 professional meetings had been held in Phoenix during the last five years and there had only been five confirmed instances of death from snake bite.

One of the lighter moments at the Airlie House meeting was provided by Howes who somehow managed to fall off the platform while introducing Marcel Kinsbourne (who was replacing Zangwill) as the dinner speaker. Fortunately, nothing was traumatized but his dignity.

CONCLUDING REMARKS

Throughout the Academy's first twenty-five years it has remained true to its purpose of providing a forum for interdisciplinary communication among scientists concerned with the understanding of aphasia. The decision to function as an independent organization has proven to be a wise one. Both the formal and informal environment of the annual scientific meeting have been the time and place for sharing the most fleeting associations to the study of aphasia as well as the most definitive research findings. The meetings and publications are a continuous record of a commitment to scholarship characteristic of its membership.

MINUTES OF PLANNING COMMITTEE

A meeting of the planning committee of the Aphasia Study Group was held at 1:00 p.m. November 18, 1962, in the Statler Hilton Hotel, New York, with Ronald Tikofsky in the chair.

Members of the committee and invited persons unable to be present were: Sylvia Richardson, Shulamith Kastein and Norman Geschwind--(the latter being represented by Harold Goodglass), and Joseph Wepman.

Present were: Ronald Tikofsky, Maurice Sklar, Fred Greenberg, Jon Eisenson, Harold Goodglass, Michael D'Asaro, Leonard Pearson, Martin Palmer and Donald McGeachy.

It was felt that the question of the Aphasia Study Group being able to function within A.S.H.A. as an interdisciplinary group had been adequately explored through Elise Hahn, Kenneth Johnson and Stanley Ainsworth who felt this was not possible. In view of this decision, all those present agreed that this group should undertake whatever organization was necessary immediately in order to be in a position to function as an interdisciplinary study group, perhaps similar to the Cerebral Palsy Academy or the Cleft Palate Association.

It was felt that a more formal organization was now indicated because the group had been having informal discussions for two years, interest had been expressed by members of other disciplines, and because of Joseph Wepman's previous suggestion that a formal organization would interest N.I.H.

The question came up as to whether "childhood" aphasia should be included, and the conclusion was reached, at least tentatively, to include it under the name "language and its disorders".

Membership

Initially this should be by invitation and later on the recommendation of a member. Qualifications for members should be the standards required by each individual's own discipline.

Governing Body

The governing body should be made up of persons of various disciplines.

It was agreed that the next step was to set up an interdisciplinary organizing body to put principles of the group on paper to circulate among our peers, and that we seek the advice of Hildred Schuell, Jon Eisenson and Joe Wepman on this matter.

There was some discussion, but no decision reached as to the time and place of the A.S.H.A. Convention.

The business of setting up an acting Executive Committee was begun.

Minutes of the First Annual Business Meeting
Academy of Aphasia, Chicago
November 2, 1963

The Business Meeting of the first annual meeting of the Academy of Aphasia was held in the Press Gallery of the Sherman Hotel in Chicago, at 10:15 a.m. Saturday, November 2, 1963, the last session of the Conference. Ronald Tikofsky (President pro-tem) was in the chair. Donald McGeachy (Secretary pro-tem) took the minutes.

The audience was made up of the registrant-members and the Executive Council.

The Chairman opened the meeting by thanking the Chairman of the Committee on Local Arrangements, Anita Halper and her Committee, and the Chairman of the Program Committee, Norman Geschwind, and his Committee.

The Treasurer, Harold Goodglass, presented his report.

The Chairman gave some statistics regarding the members:
Countries represented: U.S.A., Canada, and England. Educational level: B.A. degree 4, M.A. 42, Ph.D. 57, M.D. 18; total 121. Some members held degrees in more than one professional discipline.

Fields of major interest represented:

Speech Pathology.....	75
Medicine.....	21
Psychology.....	20
Audiology.....	3
Education.....	1
Inactive (doing Rehab. Coding)...	1

Two members are both physicians and speech pathologists. Several members also overlap other disciplines noted above.

Registration at meetings: 75 or 80, the closest count available at that time, out of a total membership of 121.

The Treasurer, Harold Goodglass, then read the Treasurer's report:

Paid Members.....	108
Dues received.....	$533.50
Expenses.....	$207.61
Balance on hand.....	$325.89

By-Laws

The Chairman suggested that in the interests of efficiency he read aloud changes in the By-laws made by the Executive Council, which the membership could follow and make in their own copies. He asked for a motion to pass the By-laws with the changes. Moved by Joe Brown, seconded by Jim Lore that the By-laws be accepted as stated.

Some discussion followed regarding the name of the organization and the By-laws.

Joe Wepman suggested that the name of the group be changed to "The Academy for the Study of Language Impairment" or "The Academy for the Study of Aphasia", and asked for discussion.

Joe Brown explained that the reason for his motion was that he felt the membership must try out the existing name and By-laws first, and leave any changes to the Committee on By-Laws.

Ed Weinstein stated that originally he had thought the name should be "The Academy of Neuro Linguistics" but changed his mind in favor of "Aphasia" because of the historical and significance of the subject, although he realized that the group will transcend aphasia, and agreed with Joe Wepman scientifically.

Joe Wepman said that he felt, attaching ourselves to the body of knowledge on aphasia would restrict the activity and interest of the members.

Sidney Weinstein referred to the "naming" problems in psychology. He said they established that (1) they wanted the Association; (2) each decide what name he prefers; (3) each decide about the By-laws, and vote by mail.

Norman Geschwind felt that the existing name was not a misnomer because most of the registrants were present because of the aphasia orientation. He agreed that the group embraced all the other areas of study and felt that we should combine the suggestions of Joe Brown and Ed Weinstein and adopt the By-laws provisionally ratified and have people react by mail.

Louis Gerstman asked that some points be settled then to save mailing. He questioned the difference between the terms "society" and "academy", and asked why there was a Scientific Committee.

Maya Riviere felt we should arrive at the name and "Constitution" there because one could not change a name once it had been used.

Ronald Tikofsky explained that the original rationale for the present name was to indicate that this was not a professional "society" but a group for study.

Sidney Weinstein suggested that we have a declaration of intent that we wanted such a group. He suggested that we now accept the existing name and By-laws and can later vote on both matters.

Michael D'Asaro questioned the stated limitation of membership to 200 and suggested it be increased to 300.

Irving Silverman was also concerned about the stated membership from another angle, namely, the percentage of each discipline. He felt there was some danger of a preponderance of the membership being from speech and hearing, and said we wanted adequate representation of each discipline concerned, which would make the orientation of the majority the orientation of the group.

Norman Geschwind agreed with Irving Silverman. With reference to D'Asaro's question about the limitation in membership, he explained that by fixing it at 200, and having 120 members now, we expect that we have the most senior people, who will carefully screen and sponsor only interested people as members.

Ed Weinstein brought up the question of dues and said the Treasurer's report had not stated the expenses.

Malvin Cole said that, with reference to the discussion of the limitations implied in the term "aphasia", some people had questioned the appropriateness of Ed Weinstein's paper on "Anosagnosia" in this meeting and felt that we did not want to incur such objections.

Mary Masland suggested that we accept the existing name and add "--and related disorders" to it.

Joe Brown suggested that the By-laws be studied by a committee and the membership, and be accepted by a simple majority vote.

A question was asked about the present executive remaining in office.

Ronald Tikofsky explained this: He stated that the proposed By-laws would allow the present board to remain in office without a formal election, thereby giving us continuity.

It was asked if, by approving the existing ratified By-laws, the membership was therefore approving of the present executive remaining in office. Having been assured that this was so, recognition of each office was asked for.

The Chairman then named and identified each member of the Executive. He asked for a vote on the motion presented by Joe Brown: that the questions under discussion be subjected to study by a committee and the membership, and the members vote by mail. A vote was taken by a show of hands and passed by acclamation.

Lamar Roberts brought up the question of future meetings, with reference to the place and with which discipline.

Ronald Tikofsky said that at a luncheon meeting that day the Executive had suggested the next meeting be in 1964 prior to the meeting of the Psychonomic Society, a group of A.P.A. in Niagara Falls. He stated he felt we were not at this point ready to meet at an independent time and place.

The Chairman said that not all of the persons sponsored had sent in application forms yet. He stated that the present requirements for each application must carry the signatures of two sponsors.

Jim Norrix stated his pleasure with the meetings and suggested that we receive printed copies of the present meetings, with his willingness to pay one or two dollars for this.

The Chairman said the proceedings had been taped, and the process of publication would be taken up.

Sidney Weinstein suggested that at future meetings all the speakers present mimeographed copies of their papers. Norman Geschwind said that the three historical papers, which opened the meetings, would be published in "Cortex" in Italy in four languages.

The Chairman said that there had been a suggestion that the papers might serve as circulators, preprint publications. Murray Milton suggested we have the presented papers mimeographed and pay for this.

The Chairman said the Committee on Publications would consider and discuss all suggestions made at this meeting, and put the question to the membership. He also reported that Weisenberg and McBride's book "Aphasia" was to be re-published by Karger within a year. He had told the publishers that this group would give them suggestions for other works to be re-published.

At this point, Mary Masland offered a vote of thanks to the Program Committee for such a program as we had had at the first Annual Meeting.

Jim Lore moved that the meeting adjourn.

Academy of Aphasia
Twelfth Annual Meeting

October 13-15, 1974
Airlie House
Warrenton, Virginia

NOTA BENE: The Airlie House is operated by the Airlie Foundation, a non-profit corporation. It is of limited size and we will be the only sizeable group there at that time. It is in a rural location, a retreat-like setting, and has recreational facilities. It operates on the American plan and the meals that are furnished are served buffet style. Coffee is furnished morning and afternoon. The weather in the area should be beautiful in mid-October. To take advantage of these qualities, the scheduling of sessions has been changed to permit free time in the early afternoon.

A different format has been added to the scientific program. Two of the sessions are composed of submitted papers that bear on two separate aspects of aphasia and language. After each paper, 5 minutes has been allotted for direct questions. At the end of each session, two invited experts have been asked to review the presented papers and to weave that information into the background fabric of knowledge about the broad subject. This will be followed by a period of open discussion. A symposium has been scheduled for Sunday evening, the business session has been moved to Monday, and there will be an after dinner lecture Monday evening. Papers have been allotted varying amounts of time as indicated in the program. In fairness to all, the time will be monitored closely by the chair.

* Three formats have been used in the scientific sessions. The three have certain features in common: the amount of time allotted different papers varies depending upon the estimated time required for presentation of the data and after each paper five minutes has been allotted for questions and comments. In one session there is no added discussion time. In two of the sessions a designated discussant has been asked to review the papers of the session and prepare an interpretive critique, weaving the new information into the background knowledge of the theme of the session. This is to be followed by open discussion. The remaining two sessions will have the discussion period in the form of a panel with the authors of the papers serving as panelists. The panel will be headed by a designated panel leader. We invite your comments as to what type of session(s) you prefer.
